Right of revocation

You may revoke your contractual statement within 14 days without stating reasons by means of an unambiguous declaration. This period begins after receipt of the notification on a permanent data medium. Sending the revocation is sufficient to comply with the cancellation period if the declaration is made on a permanent data medium (e.g. letter, fax, email). Revocation should be addressed to the provider or the seller.

Consequences of revocation

In the case of an effective revocation, the performances received by both parties must be returned.

You shall be required to make payment to compensate for the value of the service rendered up to the time of revocation if you were notified about this legal consequence before submitting your contractual declaration and have expressly agreed that we could start to render the service before the end of the revocation period. If there is an obligation to make payment to compensate for the value, this may mean that you have to nevertheless fulfil the contractual payment obligations for the period up to revocation. Your right of revocation shall expire prematurely if the contract is fulfilled completely by both parties at your express request before you have exercised your right of revocation. Obligations to reimburse payments must be fulfilled within 30 days. The period will begin for you when you send your statement of revocation and it will begin for us when it is received.
